No Encouragement for Breeders in Saddle Awards at Garden, Kentuckian Says.

By inviting a Ganadian votary of fex hunting, a French army officer and a Western dealer in all sorts of horses to judge saddle classes at Madison Square Garden this year, the National Horse Show Association contributed to the confusion of the leading American show, epd left exhibitors up in the air a little aigher than usual as to what constitutes a riding horse of the American type, if there is any such animal. The most important decisions of the week were made by a divided judiciary. The horse that won the small championship last year was third in the only class in which he was shown, yet he was sold after this reverse for what is said to have been the highest price on record for a saddle horse. The winner of the large championship in 1919 received the large championship in 1919 received the reserve ribbon this year, but was beaten for the tricolor by a horse of very difference.
